Future Developments is a collection of ~~13~~ ~~14~~ 15 artists (maybe more, you just never know) whose work will be employed to create an ad hoc sequence of distinct but relatively related exhibitions to build the whole of the exhibition. This ever-changing show, with a new iteration every two weeks or so (depending on how I feel), will include several artists previously exhibited at the gallery; a former undergraduate classmate of yours truly; someone with whom I share a birthday; a past exhibitor at Art of This; and two artists I have yet to meet in person. To keep you on your toes, as they say, there may even be some surprises, cameos, guest appearances, that sort of thing. And every Saturday at 4, please join us for Happy Hour on the Patio.

For the fourth iteration of Future Developments we have cleaned house and brought in an entirely new group. Or have they already showed before, I don't remember? Except Joe Smith and Kristen Van Deventer are still here. Kristen has new paintings that may or may not convey her growing distaste for Los Angeles, you'd have to ask her though. Joe is into some new shit with his 'failed handshake' prints and the pathos is almost too much to bear. NYers Robin Cameron and Shawn Kuruneru have shared sculptures and paintings, respectively, that I want to live with when this is all said and done. And Lisa Williamson returns with her seductive totems but please don't touch. Upcoming iterations and events will be posted on the website and via email and social media. Get with the gallery's new instagram, hook us up with some dopamine.

Next event – Saturday, July 16, 7-9pm
