

Sump Pump* – Ryan Foerster and JPW3 (J. Patrick Walsh III)
March 23 – May 4, 2013

Marco Polio Portfolio

its a process its not a process,,
can you see from my casual disposition

im hardcore casual.

its the common misconception that im serious when im joking

im dead serious,, eating your own brain is a process,, its a metaphor, for a joke

it's speed, hit by high winds,, you've seen the cigarette boats,, twittering machines turned to toothpickels.

ill sea's those bits from a distance,, take a picture,, rub it on a rock,, the blarney stone, i think starting a business is nasty shit. its like Green Juice

Sump Pump by Ryan Foerster (NY) and JPW3 (LA)

@ David Petersen Gallery is pleased to present a combine of separate practices to circulate ideas of the preservation and decay of images and objects the artists create through intuitive processes of collecting, filtering and expelling.

Sump Pump the exhibition includes the new collaborative zine, Sump Pump - available in the gallery and created for "Zine-trade-meet-up" which was held at the Walker Art Center, May 21.

Ryan Foerster was born in Newmarket, Canada, 1983. He lives in Brighton Beach, Brooklyn.
Foerster has exhibited with Martos Gallery, New York; CLEARING, Brussels; White Columns and Swiss Institute, New York; and ribordy contemporary, Geneva. Ryan's zines were included in the 2012 exhibition Millennium Magazines at the Museum of Modern Art, NY.

JPW3 is J. Patrick Walsh 3. He was born in Tallahassee, FL, 1981. He lives in Los Angeles, CA.
A recent graduate of the MFA program at the University of Southern California, JPW3 has recently exhibited with Michael Jon Gallery, Miami; Michael Thibault, Los Angeles; Suzanne Geiss Company, New York; and Kavi Gupta, Berlin.

